Transform Rhode Island Scholarship

“We need to ensure that all students can utilize technology effectively to help them in their education, and eventually, workforce journey. What better way to get them involved than to teach them how to make their own videos and songs, just like the ones they watch and listen to every day.”

BIG IDEA:

Reyan aspires to transform Rhode Island by elevating digital literacy amongst underserved students, enabling them to create lasting stories and express themselves through their own digital creative art.

Reyan believes giving young people access to develop tech skills will offer them opportunities in the digital economy.

HOW WILL HE DO IT?

Reyan’s program would support a mobile workshop lab with instructors who visit local schools, libraries, and community spaces in neighborhoods where access to digital media extracurriculars like video editing and music production is not available.

Students would learn to create digital content using provided laptops, headphones and editing software applications.
